

| Slot | | Title | Speaker(s) |
|--------------|---------------------|--|---|
| 9:30-9:55 | Coffee - welcome | | |
| 9:55 - 10:00 | Intro | Welcome to CLS 15 | Pascual Pérez-Paredes, U. Cambridge |
| 10:00-10:40 | Full paper 1 | The use of n-gram, collocation and keyword analysis to annotate linguistically marked motives attributed to trolls in the comment threads of British political blogs | Marton Petyko, U. Lancaster |
| 10:40-11:20 | Full paper 2 | "Very bad. Very, very bad. Terrible altogether": A corpus-based CDA of the interviews of the Magdalene Laundries survivors | Miguel Angel Benitez-Castro & Encarnación Hidalgo, U. Zaragoza & U. Granada |
| 11:20-11:40 | Work in progress 1 | Capturing pragmatic change: the description of ELF by means of semi-automated annotation software | Laura Centonze, Università del Salento / Universität Wien |
| 11:40-12:20 | Full paper 3 | Clusters of keyness: a principled approach to selecting key items | Costas Gabrielatos, Edge Hill U. |
| 12:20-13:30 | Lunch | | |
| 13:30-14:10 | Full paper 4 | A cyclical approach to pragmatic annotation: Our experiences with the Engineering Lecture Corpus (ELC) | Siân Alsop & Hilary Nesi, Coventry U. |
| 14:10-14:50 | Full paper 5 | Reflecting on the role of iteration in analysing learner grammar competence | Geraldine Mark & Anne O'Keefe, U. Cambridge & Mary Immaculate College |
| 14:50-15:10 | Work in progress 2 | Tackling Boilerplate Repetition | Mike Scott, Aston U. |
| 15:10-15:50 | Full paper 6 | Opportunities in opportunism: a critical evaluation of data collection methods in the Spoken BNC2014 | Robbie Love, Cambridge English Language Assessment |
| 15:50-16:10 | Work in progress 3 | Researching legal translation with corpora: mixed-methods opportunities and challenges | Lucja Biel, University of Warsaw |
| 16:15-16:45 | Discussion & finish | Concluding remarks and discussion | Everyone |