International Symposium

Leadership for Professional Learning
Monday 17th and Tuesday 18th June 2019

Are you involved in or responsible for improving teachers' professional learning for the benefit of student learners?

This is an opportunity to share innovations, research and dilemmas in collaborative and supportive dialogue.

Taking the view that leadership is an activity that can be exercised by anyone, regardless of status, the symposium will convene a diverse international group of educational leaders. This will include anyone who influences and shapes policy and practice, including students, teachers, coaches, teacher educators, academics, school and system leaders, policy influencers and policy makers, and funders.

International perspectives on professional learning will be explored with a focus on leading and enabling sustainable professional learning cultures. Participants will share their experiences, identify common challenges and seek creative solutions.

The symposium builds on work by the three lead organizing partners:
